Western Golf Courses

Carne Golf Club

West of idyllic Enniscrone, on six kilometres of Erris Peninsula coastline is Carne Golf Links, one of the most classic links in Ireland. Since opening in 1992, Carne Golf Links has earned recognition as one of the most prestigious links golf courses in Ireland. Rough and rugged in the classic manner of all great links land, this charming 18-hole course is packed with yawning chasms, high dunes and deep hollows. Its holes maneuver around the natural placement of the dunes, not daring to disturb the natural beauty of the landscape.

Connemara Golf Links

Connemara Golf Links blends the history of the game, the stunning natural and unique beauty of the western Irish landscape and the skills of a great architect to create a memorable golfing experience. Nestled between the scenic splendor of the 12 Bens mountain range and the rugged Atlantic Ocean, this 7,229-yard course is a test from start to finish. The course opens with a testing dog leg hole and requires an increasing amount of attention throughout each round. The back nine, in particular, have been acknowledged as the equal to any in the world.

County Sligo Golf Club - Rosses Point

County Sligo Golf Club is located eight kilometres from Sligo town at the seaside village of Rosses Point and is much more than just a beautiful golf course. Widely regarded as a great championship golf course, Co Sligo successfully combines gorgeous scenery and competitive play. Views of Benbulbin eclipsing the northern skyline and of rolling green hills set before the Atlantic Ocean make Co Sligo one of the most beautiful links in Ireland. Yet don't be too mesmerised by the course's natural beauty. Golfers will need to direct all their focus to their game if they expect to survive this difficult course.

Enniscrone Golf Club

Located beside the quaint seaside town of the same name, Enniscrone is sometimes passed over in discussion of Ireland's great links. One visit, however, will have every golfer convinced of its brilliance. Here, players make their way through endless dips and hollows to ultimately emerge from valleys that reveal striking views of Killala Bay, Bartra Island and the Ox Mountains. This championship venue gives visitors the ultimate golf vacation experience, with flawless greens and stunning views all year round. A maze of dunes disguises fairways, rendering excitement and a day to remember. Enniscrone begins quietly, but quickly evolves into a course that will surprise you with its variety.

Narin & Portnoo Golf Club

Narin and Portnoo Golf Club is situated in a beautiful seaside resort in County Donegal in the northwest of the country and is considered one of the finest natural and scenic 18-hole links courses in Ireland, with sweeping views of Gweebarra Bay. Opened in 1930, it is engagingly old-fashioned, with a meandering routing over and around the dunes. The course has recently been re-developed, and the new par 73 layout offers a range of teeing areas and challenges to suit all golfers.

Strandhill Golf Club

From humble beginnings back in 1931, Strandhill has become a golf club of international renown and is well-worth visiting during your trip to Ireland. The present 18-hole course was opened in 1973 and has some superb scenery to admire while playing it. Knocknarea Mountain, Culleenamore Strand and Strandhill Beach all act as amazing back-drops during an 18 hole round. In terms of length, at 5,800 metres, Strandhill is short by modern standards, but it's never short on challenging shots or dramatic landscape. The club has an excellent reputation for attention to detail and course presentation.

Westport Golf Club

A charming 18-hole parkland course with breath taking views of Croagh Patrick and Clew Bay, Westport is a course that opens comfortably before showing its teeth. Since arriving at the current site of Carrowholly back in 1973, Westport Golf Club have hosted a number amateur championships and perfectly fits the bill for an enjoyable round of holiday golf in a classicly Irish setting. The course was designed by the internationally renowned Fred Hawtree, who described it thusly: "the nature of the terrain, part inland and part seaside, the panorama which it commands and its considerable golfing virtues, make it uniquely attractive and memorable."
